NEW CHINESE TREATY.

Text of one of the Documents before Congress.

WASHINGTON, January 13th.—The following is the text of the treaty signed at Peking on September 17th, 1880, by the Commissioner Plenipotentiary of the United States and the plenipotentiary of the Chinese Empire, which provides for the future regulation of Chinese immigration, in these words: Whereas, in the eighth year of Hsien Feng, A. D. 1858, a treaty of peace and friendship was concluded between the United States of America and the Chinese Empire, the plenipotentiaries of the two nations, who were authorized to sign the same, agreed to the following articles: Whereas, in the seventh year of Tung Chih, A. D. 1868, certain supplementary articles to the advantage of both parties, which supplementary articles were to be perpetually observed and obeyed; and Whereas, the plenipotentiaries of the United States, because of the constantly increasing immigration of Chinese laborers to the territory of the United States and the embarrassment consequent upon such immigration, now desiring to modify the provisions of the existing treaties which shall not be in direct contravention of their spirit, now

Therefore, the President of the United States of America has approved James B. Angell of Michigan, John F. Swift of California, and William Henry Trescott of South Carolina, as his plenipotentiaries, and his plenipotentiaries have signed and sealed the foregoing, at Peking, in English and Chinese, there being three originals of each text, of even tenor and effect, and of which shall be exchanged at Peking within one year from the date of its execution.

Done at Peking, this 17th day of November, in the year of our Lord 1880, Kaeng Hsi sixth year, tenth moon, fifteenth day.

"A night or two ago," began the old man, as the meeting opened in due form, "a siffin member of our club came softly into my house and asked me if I had any objections to his entering into a walk-in match. Yesterday another member hinted at me about organizing a club to base-ball, and I got what I believe am the best of it. At this point, a third member proposed a deah of fastin' fur fo'ty days on Tanner's principle. For two long hours discussion took place, but no one was in favor of base-ball, fastin' or walk-in matches to rise up as a cow in a garden after cabbage. 'Wah, den, all who am 'posed will please stretch up,' continued the president. 'Every person in the hall got his feet under him as soon as possible and stood erect. I then let me say to you, all, all as follows: Two weeks with a spellin' book will do any of us no good, but two years with a base-ball club. If you want to walk go out an' look for work. As to the question of fastin', dar's a full dozen of us in this hall who'll give you the best of it. There is nothing more injurious to the development of the mind and the formation of character in young people than for them to form the habit of reading corrupt literature. It is in such books that the false side of life is given to the young, and they get the idea that life is not a great earnest battle which each must fight for himself. It is from what we read that we derive many of our thoughts and ideas, which influence many of our deeds and actions in after life. If our reading is pure, the thoughts obtained will likewise be pure; but if it is degrading in its nature, it will pull us down to a level with itself."—San Jose Mercury.
